RALEIGH LEGEND UPSET.

Historian Gosse Says Sir Walter Never Visited North America.
"Walter Raleigh never set foot in North America. Yet so pernicious is the legend connecting him with Virginia that I doubt if any one, even in the learned assembly, is not satisfied that he did."

So spoke Edmund Gosse, the leading authority on Elizabethan literature, before the Royal Geographical society a few days ago on the centenary of Queen Elizabeth's death, writes the New York World's London correspondent. Mr. Gosse added:

"But in spirit he was there, through good and evil estate. His was the brain that planned, the persistence that carried out, the courage that would never relinquish the design, and the promised land Virginia is his in history, although he only gazed at it from the fringes of the cloud."

To Honor Canadian Militiamen.
If Lord Roberts accompanies the contingent of 200 officers and men of the Honorable Artillery Company of London when they pay their return visit next September to the Honorable Artillery Company of Boston he will come over, says the Philadelphia Public Ledger, chiefly for the purpose of reviewing on behalf of the king the Canadian militia as a recognition of their services during the South African war.
